Conservatives Win in British Elections but By Reduced Majorities

Incomplete Returns Show 11 More Than Required Number of Seats.

LABORITES STAND SECOND

Margins of Conservatives Sharply Reduced from Level of Previous Election, Bonar Law's Dropping From Nearly 10,000 to 2,500.

By Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—At 4:30 o'clock returns from yesterday's elections showed the Conservatives to have more than the necessary 308 for a majority in the new House.

With only seven divisions missing they had elected 313 members the Asquithian Liberals 65, the Labor Party 120, the National Liberals or Georgeites 31 and the other parties 13.

The majorities by which the Conservatives were returned the last election are much reduced where they were re-elected, the case of Prime Minister Bonar Law being typical. The premier was returned over the Laborites candidate in the Central division of Glasgow by a margin of only 2,500 whereas in the previous election his majority was 12,911.

The second woman to be returned to the new House of Commons Lady Astor being the first was Mrs Margaret Wintingham present member for the South division of Lincolnshire. Major John Jacob Astor son of the late Viscount Astor, was elected on the Conservative ticket over the Liberal candidate, Al J Stein and the independent Unionist Colonel Sir Thomas Poulett in the Dover division of Kent.

Now That All the Obligations
For Which They Were Surety
Have Been Met.

FILE A BILL IN EQUITY

A number of Scottdale and Uniontown people who were stockholders in and endorsers of notes of the Midland Coal & Coke Company which owns a large coal property in West Virginia have filed a bill in equity asking the return of their properties which had been conveyed in trust to H. C. Frick of Uniontown.

Resorting to a practice followed in years of drought, the H. C. Frick Coke Company has been treating mine drainage for watering ovens. In Monongahela county fresh water is being used at only three plants while in Fayette county the method is in use at plants remote from large towns.

Water from artesian wells of the Pittsburgh Brewing Company between Mount Pleasant and Laurelton is being pumped into the reservoirs of the Mount Pleasant Water Company.

It was said the water had been rising a half inch a day previous to the rain.

Honest Advertising

THIS is a topic we all hear now-a-days because so many people are inclined to exaggerate. Yet has any physician told you that we claimed unreasonably remedial properties for Fletcher's Castoria? Just ask them. We won't answer it ourselves, we know what the answer will be.

That it has all the virtues to-day that was claimed for it in its early days is to be found in its increased use, the recommendation by prominent physicians, and our assurance that its standard will be maintained.

Limitations are to be found in some stores and only because of the Castoria that Mr. Fletcher created. But it is not the genuine Castoria that Mr. Fletcher honestly advertised. Honestly placed before the public, and from which he honestly expects to receive his reward.

Castoria always bears the signature of Cast. Fletcher.

HIGHEST RATE OF STEEL PRODUCTION SINCE OCTOBER, '21

Deliveries Good Notwithstanding Car Shortages, Embargoes and Other Transportation Troubles.

Special to The Weekly Courier.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—The American Metal Market and Daily Iron & Steel Report will review the steel and iron trade tomorrow as follows:

Production of steel ingots in October was at the rate of about 40,000,000 tons a year, the highest since October, 1920, and the rate is probably a shade higher now. In the face of severe car shortages shipments are maintained with difficulty. Some mills have reduced their recent accumulations, but independent sheet mills added 20,000 tons to their piles in October, their production in the month being 32 per cent of rated capacity.

Deliveries of finished steel products on old orders are very good, except as interfered with by car shortages and embargoes. The Pennsylvania having placed a new and important embargo this week. Buying of steel products in the open market is correspondingly light, except as new wants develop. There is a good movement in car and locomotive material.

Deliveries of butt weld pipe continue much in arrears and some construction work is probably impeded in consequence. In other steel products consumers appear to be well supplied and it is probable that at some points there are accumulations of steel left because the coal strike did not curtail steel production as much as was expected.

The United States Steel Corporation has not yet announced its prices on sheet and tin plates for delivery after January 1, although an announcement has been expected by the trade for two or three weeks past. There are town predictions that formerly that advance will be involved in the announcement when it comes.

The market in bars, shapes and plates is moderately steady at 2.00c but it is universally recognized that this price will not remain indefinitely. There are some deliveries still being made on sales at 1.40c and 1.50c, involving considerable loss to the mills as costs are much higher than when the sales were made.

In most districts pig iron is softer in more rapidly than formerly, some producers being willing to shade prices even when little tonnage of business is in prospect. Consumers are holding off as much as possible.

Wife Woman.

"There's one thing I don't like about Mr. Gruboin,"

"What?"

"He doesn't give his wife any credit for his success."

"He couldn't very well do that. She didn't marry him until he was in a position to give her the luxuries to which she had been accustomed."

Plastic Persiflage.

"Last Tuesday evening," writes Miss K. M., "we were sitting on the piazza when mother remarked: 'I wonder why the mosquitoes are so bad tonight.'

"I guess you've forgotten, ma," said my brother who is full of fun. "It's the first of the month, and every one presents their bills, you know."

THURSDAY EVENG., NOV. 16, 1922.

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE.

With the announcement of the speakers for the first half of the combined teachers' institute of the Connellsville and Dunbar Township School districts, to be held at month hence, the public is again reminded of the systematic and regular efforts school teachers are making to add to their knowledge of latest advances and to increase their efficiency in the practice and art of their profession.

Such as the principal object and purpose of these annual gatherings although they have great value in the opportunities afforded for the coming together of people engaged in the same lines of activity.

Men and women of established reputation as educators and known ability as institute instructors have been engaged to conduct conferences and discuss topics of timely interest to teachers who are earnestly seeking to become still better equipped for their work. Music and other features will be provided in the program which will be varied enough to suit the taste of every person in attendance.

The first half of the institute coming just after the schools have closed for the Christmas holidays and a week in advance of the "greatest day of all the year," attendance at all sessions will no wise interfere with plans for spending the holiday season at home. That the teachers of the combined districts will avail themselves of the advantages this Institute will offer is to be expected in view of the attendance record already established by them.

But the Institute is not intended for teachers alone. School directors and parents generally will be benefitted in proportion as they too are regular in their attendance at the sessions. Social contact with each other and with the teachers will of itself be helpful in promoting a better understanding of and broader sympathy with some of the problems our schools have to meet and in the right solution of which every friend of the schools should be interested.

VACCINATION LAW UPHELD.

The much discussed question of the validity of the law requiring school children to be vaccinated as a preventive of small-pox, has been finally determined by the highest authority in the land. In an opinion handed down by the United States Supreme Court on Monday, state and municipal boards of health do have the authority under the Constitution to make and enforce vaccination regulations upon school children.

The case decided by the court originated in Texas where Rosalind Zucht had been denied admission to the schools of San Antonio because she refused to submit to vaccination as ordered by the health board of that city. The contention of the plaintiff was that the city council had acted beyond its authority in delegating such power to the board of health and that such action was an infringement of personal rights and liberties.

In the argument of the case it was set forth that while society has the right to take such measures against individuals as are necessary for the protection of the whole, vaccination does not come under this classification since it held to be impossible to prove that vaccination result in benefits to the community.

The Supreme Court did not accept these arguments as convincing or applicable to the point at issue. Associate Justice Louis D. Brandeis who wrote the opinion declared that the 14th Amendment to the Constitution gave state and municipal authorities all the necessary rights to make health laws and enforce them upon the community.

With so definite and clear-cut a decision on this matter there can be no doubt as to the validity of the regulations adopted by the health department of Pennsylvania or any other state respecting regulation to safeguard the public health. It re-establishes and with the force of judicial interpretation the long accepted principle that the rights of the public are paramount to the rights of individuals. The decision simply reaffirms the right of the public to protection from communicable diseases by whatever means science has demonstrated to be effective.

The fate of an earlier fire-bug in the Perryopolis district ought to be sufficient warning to any who may seek to emulate his example.

It may have been an unusual thing for a 29-months old babe to vote in England but from the results of the last election in the United States it would appear that many others can exercise just as much discretion as the British infant.

To the school youngsters the month between now and Christmas holidays will have at least 60 days in it.

The weatherman is so sparing in his distribution of rain that he is acquiring the reputation of being the driest of the dry.

Prospective Motor Car Legislation

Philadelphia Enquirer

No less than 43 state legislatures meet next year and all of them to the National Motorists Association says will have bills of various sorts relating to motor cars submitted to them. No doubt some of these, if passed might work injustice to owners or to drivers. But in the majority of cases they will represent an effort to remedy real evils. The use of the motor car constantly increases with its usefulness and it would be futile to attempt to check this tendency by unduly restrictive legislation. But it is plain for the benefit of the public in general—which includes motorists—that many practices now too common should be ended.

It is highly important from every point of view that there should be a greater uniformity of state laws. The Federal Road Aid act is a strong influence in this direction, urging states to put themselves in a position to take advantage of its provisions. Such questions as short prevention registration taxes and fees, traffic laws and the like are little dependent on local conditions and they should be treated from a national point of view. It is unfair to drivers or car men that state laws should differ so materially. The resulting confusion is a prolific source of accident.

But it is upon the skill and good sense of the drivers themselves that safe operation mainly depends, after all, and regulations which neglect this important point will leave open a large loophole for recklessness. In Pennsylvania, for example, licenses are granted without proper inquiry into the fitness of the holder and incompetent drivers are thus permitted to drive. A law that ought to be passed is Harrisburg is one requiring an examination of the capacity of the applicant to precede the granting of a license.

Confusing Terms In Everyday English

Learn-Teach.
Learn (learn, learned, learned).
Learned (old form for past tense).

Example I have learned my lesson.

Teach (teach taught taught). He teaches them the fundamentals of grammar. The two words are often confused and 'learned' used for 'teach'.

Remember that a person learns a teacher teaches but the teacher cannot learn a person he learns for himself and is taught by the teacher.

If You Suffer From Eczema, Read This

They All Say the Same.

For a number of years I had ringworm on my face and running sores on my arm and could find nothing that would relieve me until I found a jar of Moava's Drug Store's Eczema Cream. It has cured me and I am now well again.

"I have been using Hokara," says Elizabeth Banks of Rochester, N. Y., "for an ulcerous skin trouble that tormented and pained me so that I lost weight and strength. I used it every day, everything that I knew of but continued to get worse all the time, until I began using Hokara, which cured me in four days. It seems too good to be true. I will give it to any sufferer who is afflicted."

If you are afflicted with any form of skin trouble, don't wait another day but go now and buy a jar of Hokara, the grandioses antiseptic cream that is so clean and pure and not too oily. The price is when used on the body.

At Clark's Connellsville Drug Co. and all good druggists sell a good big jar for 50 cents on the money back if dissatisfaction.

Two Months Could Not Turn in Bed. Lydia E. Phisham's Vegetable Compound Finally Restored Health.

Seattle, Washington.—"I had draggins first and could not stand on my feet. Then I had chills and fever and a hard lump in my right side and a hard lump there. I could not turn myself in bed and could not sleep. I was this way for over two months, trying everything any one told me, until my sister brought me a bottle of Lydia E. Phisham's Vegetable Compound. It took it regularly until all the hard pains had left me and I was able to be up and do my work again. The hard lump left my side and I feel splendid in all ways. I know of many women it has helped"—Mrs. G. R. Johnson, 4640 Orcas St., Seattle, Washington.

SAGE TEA BEAUTIFIES AND DARKENS HAIR

Don't Stay Gray! It Darkens. So Naturally that Nobody can Tell

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost overnight if you'll get a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually; says a well-known druggist here, because it darkens hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound tonight and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

"Well, I can't say we argue, but she does red-hot monologue."

PARENTS OF NAVEL ORANGE

From Two Trees Has Grown an Industry Which Is Now Estimated In Millions.

From two lone orange trees, to which buds of the seedless "navel" orange of Brazil were grafted some years ago, has grown an industry which last year showed a net profit of some forty million dollars. Today one hundred and seventy-five thousand acres of California land is planted to navel oranges, which are set out in numbers ranging from 80 to 1,200 trees to the acre.

William Saunders, one-time superintendent of the government horticultural grounds at Washington, D. C., learned in 1870 that a new "seedless" orange had been developed at Bahia, Brazil, and procured 12 of the young trees through the aid of a missionary. They were brought to the United States and planted under conditions as nearly those of their native land as could be found, but they could not withstand the more rigorous northern climate, and they soon died. Seeds had been taken from them to impart navel characteristics to home-grown seedlings, and still though somewhat ravished by time, these patriarchs are now aiding their small queen to the thousands of bushels of fruit their offspring yields.

From them have sprung the thousands of trees which have made the navel orange the foremost among the many varieties of oranges. Every year buds have been taken from them to impart navel characteristics to home-grown seedlings, and still though somewhat ravished by time, these patriarchs are now aiding their small queen to the thousands of bushels of fruit their offspring yields.

One of them stands just outside Elverson.

Caveman's Hearth.

What we know of our cave-dwelling ancestors we have gleaned chiefly from the relics left by the cavemen in their places of habitation in caverns and holes in the rock. Alarcet, the anthropologist, tells of a cave in Jersey, near the Bay of St. Brelade, where scientists dug down through some twenty feet of clay and rock rubbish, probably carried there in the course of the last ice age that mantled Europe, and found large stones that had propped up the fire, and even some of the ashes. Bones were found in a heap of food-refuse, which, when examined, proved to be the remains of the woolly rhinoceros, the reindeer, two kinds of horses, of a wild ox and of a deer. Thirteen human teeth were found in the food-heaps. The diners had also left their knives—flint chipped on one side.

Plants Have Heart and Pulse Beat.

Plants have a heart and pulse and a "blood circulation" very similar to that of the animal world. This is the sensational discovery of Sir Jagardis Chandra Bose, the famous Indian botanist. According to Sir Jagardis, great quantities of water are absorbed daily by the average tree. This water is driven up to the very top of the tree and then bres out again through the leaves. Experiments were carried out by Sir Jagardis at his botanical institute in Calcutta. He says there is no characteristic manifestation of animal life which could not be found in simple forms in plants also. The plant has a heart beat and a "pulse" astonishingly similar to that of animals. Besides it also reacts upon stimulation in almost the same way, and shows that it possesses a nervous system.

He—Yes, I certainly like good food, and always look forward to the next meal.

She—Why don't you talk of higher things once in a while?

He—But, my dear, what is higher than food?—London Answers.

Disadvantage of Delay.
" Didn't you get any letters at all?" asked Jamie's mother when he returned from the postoffice.

"No, mamma," he replied soberly.

"Next time you'll have to send me earlier, 'cause when I got there they was all gone."

A Flip Flapper.
"What's your favorite hymn?" one of those inquiring reporters asked a flapper the other day.

"We've got three or four," she answered promptly, "but I think I like Harry the best."

EXCITING TRIP WITH FASCISTS!

American Woman Tells of Experience on Train in Italy.

FUSILLADE FOR SOCIALISTS

Mrs. Higgins Brings Joy to One Beligerent Faction by Her Rendering of "Stretti"—Wild-Looking Youth With Hand Grenade Causes Confrontation in Railroad Coach—Have Fondness for "Tipperary"—Like Bit of Comic Opera.

Mr. Charles H. Higgins of 160 West Fifty-ninth street, who recently returned from Europe with Mr. Higgins, gives an interesting account of their trip through Italy during the disturbances between the striking Socialists and the Fascists. Mrs. Higgins writes in the New York Times:

"Few Americans traveling in Italy during the last few months have been able to understand the political crisis which came to a head during the first week of August. The Socialists were trying to win out and probably would have succeeded if the fine young Fascist, burning with loyalty, had not sprung forward, mucked the trains and restored order."

The Socialists started their big strike by cutting off all the railway and street car service, and no newspapers were issued. It was very hard for us Americans in Florence to tell really what was happening. In Italy, a strike is rather different from one in this country, for often they have a twenty-four-hour strike, but on the day following service is resumed almost as usual.

Scramble for Train.

"We started for Venice about 8:30 o'clock on a glorious Italian morning, three days after the big rail strike. We had almost arrived at Bologna, quite peacefully, when the guard told us that we must change trains, and we had to scramble to catch the train, which was the last leaving for Venice that day. There was only one first class car, and it was teeming with soldiers wearing the Fascisti caps and uniforms and supplied with a most astounding array of fighting implements. We squeezed our way through the corridor, my steelye catching on one side in a revolver stuck jauntily in a sash, and my skirt being torn by a business-like looking knife thrust into a boot."

"There was only one compartment which was not jammed with soldiers, and this was already crowded with some frightened-looking Americans. We had barely started when I saw an arm going out of the window next to mine and there a shot was fired, followed by another, and then ten or twelve."

"Then a wild-looking youth with very long hair hanging over his eyes came in all the Fascisti wear their hair much longer in front; he kept throwing his head back violently, only to show more clearly his eyes dilated with excitement, and in his hand he held a good-sized hand grenade. I saw the eyes of the American men in the compartment fixed on this article and one murmured 'Has it got the pin in?' From their looks I hoped not, though I didn't know what difference it made—I felt that immediate annihilation was close at hand, anyway. After a whispered consultation with the young sergeant who stood in our doorway, our wildest protector moved out of view."

"Socialists Fire on Train. "In a lull between the shooting I asked the sergeant in very poor Italian what was happening. It seemed that the train had been fired at by some Socialists and this had enraged our protector. As the day grew hotter the soldiers grew more restless and bored, occasionally shooting at passing cornfields to keep in practice. In the midst of my discomfort I had an inspiration—Italians love music. So again I tried the sergeant—"Do they sing 'Stretti'?" (an Italian street song) I asked. He shrugged his shoulders, but bellied something down the corridor. Then faces began to appear over shoulders and under elbows and from the step by my window, and I realized that they expected me to sing 'Stretti'."

"My heart sank, but I was too frightened to refuse. By the time I had reached the chorus, however, their grins had encouraged me. My voice grew steadier and I managed a lively finale. Their noise and applause were so boisterous that I was frightened again, but they were started now and for two hours they used the energy they had been expending on Socialists and cornfields in singing lustily.

"Their masterpiece, in our honor, was 'Tipperary,' and strange indeed were the words, but we made the train ring with our applause. At the last station before we reached Venice, a considerable crowd of peasants had gathered. As the train started slowly out of the station these natives commenced a song—a Socialist song—and with a roar the train began again. Peering from the corner of my window, I saw the crowd melt away as if by magic, none of the bullets seeming to take effect."

"That evening when we were resting luxuriously in a graceful gondola beneath a glorious Venetian full moon, the experiences of the day seemed but a bit from some comic opera, though at the time they were terribly rough."

To Honor Congo Martyr.

A tablet is to be placed in one of the wards of a London hospital in honor of the Congo chief Mandaré, who volunteered, when sleeping sickness appeared among his tribe, to go to England and submit to all the experiments necessary to determine the cause of this malady and to discover a remedy. For several months he permitted himself to be bled daily in order to supply material for the microscopists. At length the germ of the sleeping sickness was discovered; but almost simultaneously the voluntary subject of these researches paid for that discovery with his life.—The Living Age.

Descriptive Music.

"What's the name of that place you were playing?" "Bungalow Blues." "And what was the prolonged, melancholy strain you repeated at frequent intervals?" "That permeants the insinuations."

NEW PLANES PROMISE MUCH

England Makes Great Claims for Her Latest in Aircraft.

Great claims are made on behalf of several new airplanes about to be tested by the British air ministry. Among them is a new type of machine which, it is predicted, will place an entirely new aspect on the aircraft versus battleship controversy. It is known as the "Curebo," and will have a range, it is said, of over 1,000 miles when fully loaded with bombs or torpedoes.

In large numbers this machine will be most effective in repelling not only invading aircraft, but seacraft as well.

Tornado "Booster Day" Saturday; High School Without Game Tomorrow

INDEPENDENT GRID TEAM HAS HARDEST GAME ON ITS HANDS

The Connellsville Tornadoes practiced away into the dark at Fayette Field last evening in preparation for the game on Saturday with the strong Charleroi eleven. The Cokers are determined to show Brownsville they have "something on" that team by doing better than 14-6 against the river team, which played to such a score against the champions of last season. Connellsville does via decisively. Brownsville's hopes for a claim on the championship of the county will be blotted unless a game between the two aggregations is arranged.

There have been some wranglers made on Saturday's game, mostly even, but the greater majority of fans are content to go to Fayette Field and watch the battle without any intention of financial gain.

Saturday will be "Booster Day" and the Tornadoes want every supporter to be present. In addition to helping the team fans will see a game worth while. Charleroi is by far the best eleven yet pitted against the Tornadoes this year and the relations between the antagonists and Brownsville make the game one of increased interest.

CITY BASKETBALL LEAGUE WILL BE REORGANIZED SOON

With Thanksgiving drawing nearer and the end of both scholastic and semi-pro football seasons getting correspondingly close to an end, attention is turning to basketball. Light preliminary practice has already begun at the High School and now talk of the City League, which got a start last season, is again going the rounds. Basketball, it is believed, will go big this year. High School has prospects of the greatest team in its career and is certain to keep the sport in the foreground.

The City League managers will meet soon and make some arrangements for opening the season. Trotter will not be reorganized and, with that team missing, many of the managers are in favor of cutting off another, reducing the membership. The Action will be taken when a meeting is called.

Four-Team Bowling League Organized At Dickerson Run

At a meeting Tuesday night at the Y. M. C. A. at Dickerson Run, the Y. M. C. A. Bowling League was reorganized. The league will consist of four teams, Dawson, Dickerson Run, Fort Pitt and Vandergrift. The captains of the teams are: Dawson, William McCune; Dickerson Run, John Kessler; Vandergrift, Bryan Newmyer; Fort Pitt, George Miller.

Walter Boyd was chosen captain of the All-Star team, this team to be chosen from the members of the four teams and will arrange games in Fayette and Westmoreland counties.

The league will roll two games a week—Tuesdays and Fridays. The schedule will be drawn up this week. The season will open on Tuesday evening, November 23.

LATROBE UNABLE TO PLAY FRIDAY, LOCAL AUTHORITIES TOLD

The Connellsville High School was without a game for tomorrow at an early hour today. Through a misunderstanding at Latrobe that team did not know the game with Connellsville was scheduled for a Friday afternoon. The school authorities there announced the schedule as November 17, at Connellsville, but did not discover until this week that the "17th" fell on a Friday. The local authorities were immediately notified the Latrobe team could not come on Friday, and elaborate preparations had been made to be here Saturday. One special street car for readers had been chartered with the possibility of a second.

The schedule was arranged during basketball season and during a phone conversation this week, when Friday was mentioned to Latrobe, the school heads there were surprised. Latrobe said if would be impossible to play Friday as the student body would all want to attend and it would not close the school for football game.

Since then endeavorers to schedule another team for Friday afternoon have made but without success. Word was soon passed from Waynesburg, Avery school from Morgantown, W. Va., through Allegheny county has been called in an effort to secure an opponent.

TRYED TO UNNERVE GENE SARAZEN IN BIG MATCH WITH WALTER HAGEN

Gene Sarazen purchased Walter Hagen in the last lap of the official world's championship and golf title on the Westchester-Biltmore course at Rye, N. Y., by a score of 3-2. Photograph shows Gene Sarazen carefully executing a long putt at the thirteenth hole.

After the early round of 18 holes over the course Gene was eating his lunch at the club house when the gold-coated doorman presented him a plow note, highly scented, and marked "Personal."

"Dear Gene," ran the epistle, "I am enclosing a witch I think will match your complexion. I am counting to see you play even if I have to get up at 8 o'clock in the morning. You can tell me by my Postscript who is almost as cute as you are. Affectionately—Jeanette."

Witnesses thought there was a twinkle in Hagen's eye as Gene blushing read the letter, but one still gave away no secret. At all events, Gene wore the tie and we'll leave it to you whether it brought him luck.

INTERESTING SPORT NOTES

As for football, east is east and west is Iowa.

Edward Baldwin, crack pole player of Manh, Hawaii, will enter Cornell.

Some football writers are so old-fashioned that they still refer to the "Big Three."

Lincoln, Ill., has a star pitcher named Armstrong. What could be fairer?

Another sign that the world is growing better is seen in the short haul of football players.

Too many stars of the diamond and the ring try to deserve the name by staying out all night.

A "major sport" in collegiate athletics is one that has been recognized by the ticket speculators.

France likes art, but ceases to applaud an artistic boxer when what she desired was a prize fighter.

Iowa City's city council adopted resolutions congratulating the Hawkeyes on their victory over Yale.

Lacrosse, which has lost so much of its "to" and strength in the East, seems more alive than ever in the West.

As a protection to umpires organized baseball might adopt rule requiring that pop be sold only in padded bottles.

Along with the closing of the racing game comes the report that Willie Kannan has developed a $100,000 charley horse.

The wise men of the East who picked the Yankees in four straight didn't succeed in selling Miller Hugger's either.

Charles Spier, one of the greatest swimmers in the scholastic world, will enter Penn in February. He is an all-around star developed at Mercersburg.

The most popular jockey on the Eastern tracks this season has been Larry Lyke, and he has had a big following because of his ability to pilot winners under the wire. He was particularly successful at Laurel, Md., where he rode Eddius, winner of the feature race of the opening day.

We noticed a picture of Babe Ruth shaking hands with some foreign nobody. If he had hammered out a few more home runs he could have shaken hands with himself.

Paul Stewart of Chicago was elected captain of the 1923 University of Illinois baseball team.

Hob Pordue, as the Texas league season closed, let it be known that he is done with baseball.

"Mercedes, bring what you can carry and follow me," he said. "Then make for Yaqui to remain there, he turned down the slope with Ladd in his arms."

Neither pausing nor making a misstep, nor conscious of great effort, Gale carried the wounded man down into the arroyo. Mercedes kept at his heels, light as a panther. He left her with Ladd, and went back. When he had started off Thorne in his arms, he left the ghost of his former rugged self, but with life in the eyes that turned always toward Mercedes. Ladd staggered and staggered. The life seemedly would not leave his bullet-pierced body. The tireless, impincible, inscrutable savage was ever at the ranger's side. His great somber eyes burned. At length he wore to Gale, and with that strange light fitting across the hard bronzed face, he said Ladd would live.

"The second day after Ladd had been given such thin nourishment as he could swallow he recovered the use of his tongue.

"Shore—this's h—l," he whispered. That was a characteristic speech for the ranger. Gale thought; and indeed it made all who had heard it smile while their eyes were wet.

From that time forward Ladd gained, but he gained so immeasurably slowly that only the eyes of bone could have seen any improvement. Jim Lash threw away his crutch, and Thorne was well. If still somewhat weak, before Ladd could lift his arm or turn his head, his spurs grew stronger. And the day arrived when Gale, who was perhaps the least optimistic, threw doubt to the winds and knew the ranger would get well.

"Boys, come round," said Ladd, in his low voice. "An' you, Mercedes. An' call the Yaqui."

Ladd lay in the shade of the brush shelter that had been erected. There seemed little of him but long, lean lines, and if it had not been for his keen, thoughtful, kindly eyes, his face would have resembled a death mask of a man starved.

"Shore I want to know what day is it an' what month?" asked Ladd.

Nobody could answer him. The question seemed a surprise to Gale, and evidently was so to the others. "Look at that cactus," went on Ladd.

"I reckon according to that giant cactus it's somewhere along the end of March," said Jim Lash, soberly. "Shore it's April. Look where the sun is. An' can't you feel it's gettin' hot?"

"Supposin' it is 'April,'" queried Lash, slowly.

"Well, what I'm drivin' at is it's about time you all been bittin' the trail back to Fortorn River, before the waterholes dry out."

Ladd, I reckon we'll start soon as you're able to be put on a horse."

"Shore that'll be too late."

A silence ensued, in which those who heard Ladd gazed fixedly at him and at one another. Lash easily shifted the position of his lame leg, and Gale saw him moisten his lips with his tongue.

"Charlie Ladd, I ain't reckonin' you mean we're to ride off an' leave you here?"

"What else is there, to do? The hot weather's close. Pretty soon most of the waterholes will be dry. You can't travel then."

"I'm on my back here, an' God only knows when I could be packed out. Not for weeks, maybe. I'll never be any good again, even if I was to get out alive."

"You see, shore this sort of case comes round sometimes in the desert. It's common enough. I've heard of several cases where men had to go an' leave a fellow behind. It's reasonable. If you're fightin' the dewey you can't afford to be sentimental."

"Now, as I said, I'm all in. So what's the sense of you waitin' here, when it means the old desert story? By gosh now, boys, you see this the right way? Jim, old pard?"

"No, Ladd, an' I can't figger how you could ever ask me."

"Shore then leave me here with Yaqui an' a couple of the horses. We can eat sheep meat. An' if the water holds out—"

"No!" interrupted Lash, violently.

Ladd's eyes sought Gale's face.

"Son, you don't bulk-headed like Jim. You'll see the suns of it. Thorne. Well-a-waitin' back at Fortorn River. Think what it means to her! You'll go, son, won't you?"

Dick shook his head.

The ranger turned his gaze upon Thorne, and now the keen, glistering eyes had blurred.

"Thorne, it's different with you. Jim's a fool, as young Gale has been punctured by choya thorns. He's got the desert poison in his blood. But you now—you've no call to stick—you can find that trail out. Take your wife an' go. . . . Shore you'll go."

Deliberately and without a moment's hesitation the cavalryman replied "No."

Ladd then directed his appeal to Mercedes. His face was now convulsed, and his voice, though it had sunk to a whisper, was clear, and beautiful with some rich quality that Gale had never before heard in it.

"Mercedes, you're a woman. You're the woman we fought for. An' some of us are shore goin' to die for you. Don't make it all for nothin'. Let us feel we saved the woman. Shore you can make Thorne go. I'll have to go if you say. They'll all have to go. Think of the years of love an' happiness in store for you. A week or so an' it'll be too late. Mercedes, don't make it all for nothin'. Say you'll persuade Thorne, if not the others."

Days passed, and grew into what Gale imagined must have been weeks. Yaqui recovered fully. Jim Lash began to move about on a crutch; he shared the Indian's watch over Ladd. Thorne lay a haggard, emaciated

"Never!" White-faced, with great black eyes flashing, the Spanish girl spoke the word that bound her and her companions in the desert.

The subject was never mentioned again. Gale thought that he read a sinister purpose in Ladd's mind. To his astonishment, Lish came to him with the same fancy. After that they made certain there never was a gun within reach of Ladd's clutching, clawlike hands.

Gradually a somber spell lifted from the ranger's mind. When he was entirely free of it he began to gather strength daily. Then it was as if he had never known torture—the who had shown so well how to walk. He was in a frenzy to get well. His appetite could not be satisfied.

The sun climbed higher, whiter, hotter. Every day the water in the lava hole sank an inch.

The Yaqui alone spent the waiting times in activity. He made trips up on the lava stone, and each time he returned with guns or boots or sombreros, or something belonging to the bandits that had fled.

Those waiting days grew into weeks.

Ladd gained very slowly. Nevertheless, at last he could walk about, and soon he avowed that, strapped to a horse, he could lilt out the trip to Fortorn River.

There was rejoicing in camp, and plans were eagerly suggested.

The Yaqui happened to be absent. When he returned, the rangers told him they were now ready to undertake the journey back across lava and cactus.

"Yaqui shoot his head. They declared again their intention.

"No," replied the Indian, and his deep, sonorous voice rolled out upon the quiet of the savanna. He spoke briefly then. The had waited too long. The smaller waterholes back in the trail were dry. The hot sun was upon them. There could be only death waiting down in the burning valley. Here was water and grass and wood and shrubs from the sun's rays, and sheep to be killed on the peaks.

"Wait for rain," concluded Yaqui, and now as never before he spoke as one with authority. "If no rain?"

Silently he lit a smoking hand.

"Boys, come round," said Ladd, in his low voice. "An' you, Mercedes. An' call the Yaqui."

Ladd lay in the shade of the brush shelter that had been erected. There seemed little of him but long, lean lines, and if it had not been for his keen, thoughtful, kindly eyes, his face would have resembled a death mask of a man starved.

At the TheatresTHE SOISSON

THE STORM, the leading attraction today, Friday and Saturday at this theatre, is a "Universal" picture starring House Peters, supported by Virginia Valli, Matt Moore and other well known screen artists. The play in all its magnificent action is uncommonly gripping and affords an audience keenest pleasure and suspense. Virginia Valli as the French-Canadian orphan, loved by both Burr and Weston and Dave Stewart is a lovable type and plays the part with a deep understanding and sympathy that is winning her widespread commendation. "The Storm" presents the struggle between two lovers to win the girl and the attempt of Manette to play fair with both of them. The demands for a happy ending are met in an unusual, but natural way that sends everyone home happy.

THE PARAMOUNT

"LITTLE WILDCAT," with Alice Calhoun in the stellar role, provides splendid entertainment today and tomorrow. A story of contrasts and a picture of life as it exists is found in "Little Wildcat." Alice was a wild one. She could whip any boy her size in the alley and had tackled those much larger than herself. She could shoot craps and lift a watch or a roll of bills without trouble. Yet in heart she was good and when the opportunity came she blossomed into a society maid and later a nurse. There was the spark of womanhood in her breast that made her climb to great heights when opportunity offered. "Texas," with Franklyn Farnum in the stellar role will be shown Friday and Saturday.

THE CIRQUEUM

"MANSLAUGHTER," the feature picture today, attracted record breaking crowds at all performances yesterday. Lydia Thorne, a capricious wealthy girl, while speeding in her automobile, caused the death of a motor policeman, and is prosecuted by Dan O'Bannon, a district attorney, who loves her. O'Bannon is shocked by the gaity of modern society and mentally paints a picture of the downfall of Rome. This tremendous epoch is shown in all its splendor. O'Bannon impersonating Adario of Goth, and Lydia the most beautiful and profligate woman in Rome.

Lydia's conviction of manslaughter through O'Bannon's efforts, and her sentence to a term in prison curtails Lydia and when O'Bannon calls on her in the prison, she attacks him and collapses. In her delirium she jangles the keys that she has shot O'Bannon in the courtroom and when she recovers, she realizes that she loves him devotedly.

Friday and Saturday Betty Compson will be seen in "Over the Border," a Paramount picture.

GAS IN THE STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Recommend daily use of Magnesia To Overcome Troubles Caused by Fomenting Food and Acid Indigestion.

Gas and wind in the stomach accompanied by that full bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidences of acid indigestion. Regurgitative acids are added in the stomach, creating so-called "acid indigestion."

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach often causing ulcers. It is accompanied by certain stomach ulcers. Food ferment and burns, creating the distressing gas which distorts the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital internal organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead get from any druggist a few grains of Bismuth Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a water glass of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloated right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the acids, and give you a new appetite and there is no sourness or pain. Bismuth Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best form of medicine for acid stomach. It is used by thousands of people who carry their meals with no more fear of indigestion. Advertisement.
